TONIGHT.

At the Grand tonight one of the best musical comedies of the season will be disclosed. It is "The Flower of the Ranch," which was immensely successful last season, and played only the larger cities of the east until it went into Chicago for a summer run at the Garrick Theater. The work is from the pen of Joseph E. Howard, composer of the music of half a score of successful musical plays, including "The Time, the Place and the Girl" and "The Girl Question." Howard's happy faculty of writing whistleable music is well known, and it is said that "The Flower of the Ranch" is brimming over with musical hits.

As its title might suggest, the play is of the west, all three acts having been laid in California. The story has been declared to be sufficiently consistent and interesting to have been presented as a comedy drama without the musical score, which adds so much to its popularity. With two exceptions the cast of the principals is the same as when the play was produced in New York, and includes Frankie Drew, Frances Cossar, Edward Hume, Frederick Knight, John McSweeney, Walter Stanley and Geo. Doolittle. A complete and picturesque scenic production is promised.

SUNDAY, JAN. 17.

One of the most touching and beautiful sentiments expressed in any play on the stage today is in the secondary scene in "Sis Hopkins," the charming rural comedy drama in which Miss Rose Melville is playing again this season. The fashionably dressed rich girls at Miss Peckover's school for young ladies are teasing quaint and simple "Sis" about her new white frock which to tell the plain truth doesn't fit very well, and looks just what it is, a home-made dress for the party. "Sis" has her feelings badly hurt by the nagging of the rest of the girls and finally quieted them by saying very simply and very quietly, but with a great deal of pathos: "My ma made this dress for me, and what she is good enough to make is good enough for me to wear." J. R. Stirling, Miss Melville's manager, has given her a company this season which is excellent to a superlative degree, and the production has been entirely refurbished as to scenery and costume.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 20.

The cast of "50 Miles From Boston," the Cohan musical play, which will be presented at the Grand Wednesday, Jan. 20, under direct management of Cohan and Harris, is said to contain many well known people.

Joseph Sparks, formerly with Arnold Daly and the last few seasons with May Irwin, appears as "Harrigan," the hero of the popular song of that name, which Mr. Cohan wrote for "50 Miles From Boston."

Miss Hazel Lowry, as the village postmistress, is said to be very appealing in the role. Mr. Cohan has given her a dainty "Jack and Jill" song in which she is assisted by a group of "Small Town Girls."

COACHMAN SUICIDES

Boston, Jan. 9.—Daniel J. Mooney, former president of the Coachman's Union, committed suicide last night by taking poison. Mooney had been a driver for President Roosevelt who commended his skillful work on a visit here four years ago, and had also driven Prince Henri, of Prussia, when the latter visited this city on his tour of the United States. Mooney had been out of work of late.

W. F. Reeder and A. J. Hawks have returned from Central Nevada, where they are aiding in the development of what is one of the most extensively mineralized districts in that state famous for its mining excitements. Mr. Reeder exhibited specimens of cinnabar, ruby silver and wire gold which a greenhorn would recognize as valuable ore. The cinnabar is from a property near Lone, owned by the Davis Brothers of Salt Lake, which is yielding big returns in quicksilver in an improvised retorting plant. The silver and gold specimens, representing values up in the thousands, came from the property of Mr. Hawks, near the old town of Ellsworth, the claim having been bonded to eastern parties for $30,000 the day before the owner started for Ogden on his way to his home in Garland. A true fissure vein on this property produces very rich ore, some of it running $60 in gold and 720 ounces in silver.

Mr. Reeder has four claims in this same district, between the Mohawk-Duluth and the Duluth Consolidated, which caused him to make a lively dash for that section at the close of the year. He left Ogden on Christmas day and managed to reach his property none too soon to prevent the claims being "jumped." Expert mining men say the Reeder claims give promise of developing into mines equally as rich as the Duluth Consolidated on the ore of which Mr. Hawks, as manager, has lately made a test run at the Berlin mill, receiving therefrom a bar of gold bullion valued at $1,000.

This mining region is 55 miles southwest of Austin and is beginning to attract much attention.

trance on Twenty-fourth). Sunday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY
FILES ANSWER TO SUIT

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—Asserting that notes bearing the endorsement of P. J. Kieran, president of the Flaherty Funding company, were not sanctioned by the St. Mary's academy of Benedictine Sisters of Nauvoo, Ill., and that no consideration was ever given for the $700,000 worth of paper, the Catholic institution yesterday filed an answer to suits in the United States circuit court. The answer sets out that the notes were signed without the authority of the academy; that the institution is incorporated; that, under the state law, notes cannot be signed without the consent of the majority of the stockholders and that no consideration ever was received for the notes.
